Quantum Corporation Names William J. Miller Chief Executive Officer

MILPITAS, Calif., March 11, 1992 -- Quantum Corporation (OTC:QNTM), today announced that William J. Miller will be joining the company as chief executive officer. In that position, Miller will be responsible for the growth and development of the company. Stephen M. Berkley, Quantum's chairman of the board, and previously CEO, will remain actively involved as chairman, spearheading corporate efforts in key partner relationships and longer term strategic issues in support of Miller's leadership of Quantum.

Miller joins Quantum after 11 years with Control Data Corporation (CDC) where he was most recently executive vice president, and president of information services. He previously served as president and chief executive officer of Imprimis Technology, then a wholly-owned subsidiary of CDC. During his tenure at Imprimis, Miller was instrumental in the turnaround of this billion dollar hard disk drive company prior to its acquisition by Seagate. Prior to that, Miller led the Small Disk Division of CDC's Data Storage Products Group, the predecessor of Imprimis, and previously held senior management positions in marketing and legal support.

According to Berkley, Miller is a key addition to Quantum's senior management staff. "Bill brings to Quantum a unique combination of hard disk drive industry experience, leadership, and proven ability to grow a business. These are all qualities that will be important for us as we put the strategies in place to continue building our business," Berkley said.
