EASCON NOTES AND STANDARDIZATION

This message was received from Lee Baumann at Science Applications, Inc. In the course of a conversation last Friday, he mentioned to me that some nice things were said about RADC at the IEEE conference in Washington last week. I asked him to collate whatever information he could get and send it to me as a message on the Net. Ed

Ed,

3a

Here are some notes from the EASCON conference sponsored by IEEE last week. We only monitored about 10 of the 240 speakers so obviously missed much.

3b

RADC received much emphasis during the EASCON '75 convention by senior DoD officials.

3c

Some pertinent notes were:

3d

Dr. Currie, DDR&E. Software costs are driving some new programs out of reach. RADC is trying to get handle on problem.

3e

Dr. LaBerge, Asst. SAF (R&D). RADC, ESD, AFCRL, LL and MITRE to emphasize C3 R&D. RADC to take lead to better manage ADP resources. There will be many new starts regarding "applications programs".

3f

Mr. Reed, DTACCS. RADC Key in ADP software area. Weakness in man/machine interaction. (Displays?).

3g

Mr. Solomon, Asst. DTACCS. Integrated data systems and secure voice major DoD problems. RADC to help. NATO integrated data systems are major concern.

3h

EASCON NOTES AND STANDARDIZATION

Gen. Evans (CDR, AFSC). First priority balance between capability/ time/cost. Need C3 (especially internettted computers) to link vertically NCA with "pilot in the cockpit". Each new ADP and communications system must have clearly defined interfaces. Few commanders and managers understand software impact on their systems or organizations. This is to change. RADC will lead. 31

Major General Edge (Asst. C. of S. ADP & Comm). Systems Engineering key to Air Staff emphasis. RADC to manage AF software direction. 3m

Also thinking about the standard language for DoD problem. Here are some tasks which could be added to the three listed in your previous message. 3n

1. Establish Service Points of Contact and gather Service Inputs and Documentation. 3o

2. Review Service and Community documentation. 3p

3. Establish Review Group composed of Service, Academic and Industrial members. 3q

4. Prepare alternative language considerations concentrating as schedules, costs and feasibility. 3r

5. Hold on summary Review Group meeting to prepare final plan. 3s

Six months seems like the right time frame for an effort of this magnitude. we can gear up immediately should you choose to go. 3t

Look forward to seeing you while you are in Washington this week. 3u

SRI STAFF: P. Whiting-O'Keefe, D. Brown, R. Belleville 6

ACTION: Prepare a document directed toward Bechtel's current problems - a specialized version of our Automation in Document Production paper. Try to obtain the support of George Shultz, Pres., Bechtel Corp., who is currently located in Palo Alto. Set up a visit of J. Gasser and Rex Akins to SRI to show them NLS, MAE, and to meet some of our staff. 7

TOPICS: The current organization of Bechtel was described as consisting of relatively autonomous divisions that divide along lines of specialization, plus a corporate services group that performs support functions. (It sounds much like SRI, in a scaled up version.) Thus there is no centralized approach to text-editing or word processing. 8

The ATS system previously controlled by Bechtel has been taken over by an external organization and our understanding is that use of it has been phased out. They have a Singer Phototypesetter, several Remington Typewriter Systems, Lexitrons, and similar word processing systems throughout the organization. As for computers, they have a Univac 1110 central computer facility and numerous diverse project dedicated or miscellaneous computer systems scattered across the divisions. They currently also have an interface between a Data General Eclipse and the Singer Phototypesetter. 9

The strongest approach for SRI seemed to be a systems analysis of current needs and tools, and the cost effectiveness of centralized facilities in support of divisional work. A high technology approach seems feasible. The best approach channels would appear to be either by entering at the divisional level and getting support on that scale or by gaining senior management backing for top level impact and a total systems approach mandate. It was suggested that due to Bechtel representation on SRI's Board of Directors, we might elicit the support of George Shultz, Pres. Bechtel Corp, who is currently in P.A. 10

ACTION: None 7

TOPICS: The Procedures and Organization Division is responsible for word processing equipment. Information Systems has computer system responsibility. Engineering Applications Division has the in-house expertise in text-processing systems. PG&E is now in the throes of a major policy decision to determine whether to go outside or to stay in-house to supply them with system and service support in text processing. 8

Currently they use outside services--unidentified, and they have some stand-alone word processing systems scattered around the organization. 9

Their requirements span from environmental impact reports to specs for RFP's to the construction industry. 10

Current responsibility to determine the relevant data and to make decisions regarding implementation rests with the Computer Review

The Computer Review Committee is made up of representatives of:

Summary of a Study of Public Journal Mail Traffic in a Six-Month
Period

Transmission rates for NLS users in ARC and outside ARC are noted. Compared to the one other user community employing a computer-based message system that monitors traffic, Journal mail usage seems quite low. It is suggested that this matter be considered further.

Summary of a Study of Public Journal Mail Traffic in a Six-Month
Period

During the first six months of 1975, there were 2065 public journal items sent by NLS users. Over 64 percent of these were sent by ARCers. Although nearly everybody in ARC sent at least one public journal item during the period, the average ARCer sent only 5.4 public journal items per month.

1

Outside ARC, use was very low. Only 94 of the 250 or so NLS users outside ARC sent even one public item. The average user that sent at least one item averaged 1.3 items per month. For all the 250 or so NLS users, the average was one public item every two months.

2

In comparison, one 93-person organization in Canada, using a less sophisticated computer mail system, sent 21,000 messages during one six-month period. That is an average of 39 items sent per person per month -- about 7 times ARC's traffic in public journal messages and about 80 times the transmission rate for NLS users outside ARC.

3

Why is our use rate so low? There are two possible explanations that are purely data-specific. These are that public journal mail may be much lower than total journal mail traffic (including private messages). The second is that TENEX Sendmessages are siphoning away the short-message traffic. If private messages are, in fact, dominating, then there would be no problem. But I find it hard to believe that private messages are exceeding public messages by a factor of two to seven. Regarding Sendmessages, if they are really dominating usage, we should think very hard about why Journal mail is not competitive with Sendmessages.

4

Furthermore, it may be that journal mail user systems are not designed in ways users like. At least one architect has called journal mail a "pain in the neck" to use. It may also be that there do exist adequate tools, but that documentation or training need to be developed.

On the whole, past usage statistics suggest that ARC should reconsider its procedures for handling journal mail and teaching users how to live with Sendmail.

John - This was done Friday...cleaned it up and am just sending it to you for info and then will delete it out of my directory. P.S. These lineprocessors are kind of neat I must admit...really like the backspace word key which you don't find on the Imlacs!

Software Issue Paper

3 a & b

Software has typically been written in a specific language for a specific machine. Because of this it has been virtually impossible to utilize software packages on one system for another. In the current state-of-the-art, it is probably only possible where the specific software house, TRW, has modules available as a result of similar applications.

However, it is conceivable that modules could be re-used for this application. Cross compiler is a proven approach which should be explored. It is used in AVIONICS systems, but as yet has not been used extensively in command and control.

Since most real-time radar processing is done in Fortran, it may be reasonable to press the contractor to explore the possibility of "booting across" modules for this specific target machine.

Use of assembly language, lack of software support tools, dialects of a high order language; all have contributed to the lack of re-use of software modules in diverse systems. In addition, poor programming practices and lack of clear concise documentation have and still do prevent the re-use of software modules.

Highly competent software companies put together teams for Air Force applications with no support or direction from their parent organizations due to the lack of cross compilers and higher order languages.

LABORATORY ACTIVITY REPORT

Title: Memorandum of Agreement (MOA) between RADC/IS and ESD/MCI

Project Engineer: (For RADC) Roger B. Panara

Narrative: In response to direction received from AFSC/DL on AFSC Form 56, Number 5550-5-75-12, 8 Nov 74 for Program Element 63728F, Project 5550, a MOA has been consummated between the Information Sciences Division (IS) at RADC and the Information Systems Technology Applications Office (MCI) at ESD. The MOA covers the area in which ESD is the participating organization in Project 5550 for which RADC is the designated lead organization.

ESD has the primary responsibility as task manager for Task 09, ADP System Security. In this capacity, ESD will provide engineering personnel and direction, and contracting services for meeting task objectives in multi-level computer security. Outputs of the task which are applicable to software reliability, computer architecture, and higher order language control will be provided to RADC.

In addition to performing Project 5550 management functions, RADC will have direct engineering responsibility for the development of secure data management system technology, make available the RADC MULTICS facilities for use by ESD on the security task and provide engineering support for specific efforts related to security such as vulnerability analysis, performance measurements and MULTICS network interfaces.

Support for DVN's Documentation Wish List (33683,)

The kinds of things that Dirk itemizes seem to me to be exactly what we need to enhance the salability as well as the utility of NLS. Perhaps Jan and Carolyn will be able to help refine present features of NLS rather than waiting for some big contract for redesign (which reminds me of the guys who have to build some superhighway rather than repaving existing roads).

See -- 25451,) for the Sendmail citation design , RLL

Comment on 33680, Partial Summary of Sendmail Usage

Its good to have some numbers to back up what we have known for over a year. There has been enough input from users concerning the use of Sendmail to serve as the basis of its refinement. More reinforcement for this refinement was received at this past KWAC meeting. I think some action is in order if can find the resources. Just 2 refinements would improve Sendmail an order of magnitude:

1) The redesign of the delivery citation as per RLL's study earlier this year ;

2) The implementation of the Expedite command to allow users the option of immediate delivery;

I will look into improved training /documentation for Sendmail. Someone should look into the private use , which may be much larger than expected.
