Comment On: 101368702 Comment By: 118114090

Message:

Adam -

I've warned you about those index words; now I've run out of patience. This is just a little demonstration to let you know I'm not kidding around. If you need to use millions of index words, keep them relevant.

Title: Garbage in the eye of the beholder...

Comment On: 101335291 Comment By: 118113245

Message:

Part of the strategy for CM is that you can search for messages under index words that SHOULD reflect what the message contains. Then you can see only stuff relevant to you instead of all the garbage. Unfortunately, this is only partially successful, because a lot of people (like YOU, for example) use index words not dealing with the subject at hand. I was looking for info about housing, and to me, YOUR MESSAGE IS GARBAGE!!! Any suggestions?

Title: ACITATING FOR USEFULLY INDEXED WORDS

Comment On: 118111868 Comment By:

Message:

The only suggestion I have for making index words more useful on the present system is to do what YOU did: complain to users who choose index words just to ensure a lot of readers of their message, rather than with any real relationship to the topic that index word suggests.

The way to make a complaint most effective is:

1. write your message as a response to the offending message.
2. title it & use index words that most accurately reflect what you have to say, so other CM users will want to read what you have to say.

Title: Try on THIS for a likely explanation
Comment On: 51091660 Comment By:
Message:

What the empty message probably means is that someone who was using the EXTRA key to enter an author name (& password) or else was still at the terminal after entering the original message decided to delete the message. At present, the only way you can do this is to get to your message, hit the EXTRA key and use NO until you reach the Edit Message choice. Then, if the computer is sure you're the author of the message, you can delete the message contents and your author name.
But you would be unable to get rid of index words you'd added.

That's my best guess about what happened.->CMCAT(-

Title: Now, Adam, don't get upset....

Comment On: 118114090 Comment By: 118125726

Message:

Dearest Adam -

I never meant to imply that you worked against the best interests of Community Memory. But surely we all agree that the unfortunate situation that developed with the Leader should not be repeated. When you first discovered how to add more than ten index words to your messages, I told you I would look the other way as long as you didn't abuse your power. But your message about the media has nothing whatsoever to do with CARS, HOUSING, etc. Just a little restraint will make things much better for everybody. Although you placed these words back on your message (so much for "not thinking about" which words you add), I will not repeat my demonstration. My purpose is not to single-handedly clean up the index word usage, but to encourage others to share the information needs of others. I'll be WATCHING to see what happens.

your friend,
the watcher

Whenever someone creates a new author name on CM, an empty message like that one is generated. In that message CM stores the author's password (but you can't see it). You should be able to find such messages for all author names on the system, and the DATE ADDED: tells you when the name was first used.

Title: CMCAT asks for peace, sanity & cooperation on CM
Comment On: 118117800 Comment By: 118128878

Message:

If you want a nickname for CMCAT then try Cat, or even Catherine. I'm not Cathy. I'm also not the Watcher, & have no clue how someone erased your inappropriate index words.

The thing that puzzles me is this: with all your high-flown ideas about the way the world should work, you persist in an advertiser's mentality when it comes to choosing index words. Like the advertiser who picks media in which to advertise, you pick some totally unrelated index words simply because you figure lots of folks use those words to look at messages on CM. Don't you see that you're shooting yourself in the foot with these tactics? The more any user lands his/her message in indexed lists to which it has no relation, the less many potential CM users will return to use & support CM in the future. And if there's not sufficient support for CM, not only will the system not grow, but it may not continue, either.

How's about not trashing up the system that feeds you?

What a sick mind to take this opportunity to show us the bottom of his

I've READ the message that "fuck you karen" refers to-- it's just a simple "HELLO, HOW ARE YOU; I WAS HERE" message--I surely anticipated a message with some sexual connotations which this--ANNONYMOUS--writer took umbrage with--no way, though.

Comment On: 118135195 Comment By:

Message:
Dear lonely teenager,
I am a lonely teenager also. Please help me. If we get together, it will solve both of our problems. I love tap dancing in the rain, skiing, parasailing, and making love on warm beaches. I hope that you will enjoy doing these activities with me (especially the last one.) Please repond.

Love always,
A romantic, but lonely

I find it amazing, no disappointing that most messages on here are from,by, about men,except concerning sex and the wanting of it. I am a mature lesbian woman beginning a new career in computer technician and electronics. Are there any more of us ou here? I am now attending Heald in the ciy, and there are three of us women in the class this quarter. We would love to hear from others of us./Call and leave a message for Patricia at Heald Institute with Matthew Lobeau. Keep strong women and we will break into this male-dominated field yet!

Martin! How can a country supposedly founded on the belief of freedom and equality produce bigoted persons as you.Perhaps our founding fathers were also lacking. Yes, many of them were slave owners and exploiters of workers. America for Americans, Martin you will have to leave. The only Americans are the original Native Americans who offering friendship were met with genocide. So, where can we go from here? Try to keep America as a refuge from political persecution,economic exploita--tion, untill another world can be created for us all to go freely wherever we choosu.

Title: Mini-primer on doing what you want on CM (for PAN)

Comment On: 118132214 Comment By:

Message:

Dear Pan:

Our anonymous friend already answered your specific question about telling the computer to erase your message, but I thought I'd mention the basic concept here. To move from doing one kind of activity in a message (such as EDITING CONTENT) to another possible activity listed in the menu in the lower left corner of the screen, hit NOs to step thru the various options till you reach the one you want.

The deal is, the screen gives you three different indications of what you are doing and two indications of what you could do instead at that given time. Up top, the first line will tell you what hitting YES would do. If you look below and to the left, you see the window that says YOU ARE NOW... and that lists several different options, with your current choice highlighted. The YOU ARE NOW message is just a different way of describing the activity highlighted in the list below.

Thanks for asking questions, Pan, and thanks to all friends of CM who share their knowledge (of this CM system and of the world at large) here.

Regards, ---->CMCAT<----

Comment On: 118141780 Comment By: 118150742

Message:

I don't know what happened to the rest of the msg this one refers to, but anyway: this computer system (CM) is run by a Plexus-35 minicomputer. The terminal you're using to read this is a Soroc terminal to which a number of hardware modifications have been made. Part of what CM hopes to accomplish with our revision of the CM system is to install Atari ST's in place of the Sorocs -- and in LOTS MORE LOCATIONS. The Ataris have much nicer keyboards, with all the keys in their usual places (no more I when you mean '), and we'll also be able to have easier to read screens.

Title: Having a voice on CM; affirming our own power

Comment On: 118140966 Comment By: 118151424

Message:

Welcome to CM, and thank you for what you have to say. Your willingness to participate and voice your own opinions is the way CM gets better and bigger, used by more and more people of all affiliations/affinities. For me, one of the most attractive features of CM is that, when I see (messages that strike me as) oppressive garbage, I can respond, affirming my own power and pointing out the weakness of those who seek to control others with ugly &/or violent words & tactics. The nice thing is, unlike a similar situation on the street, here I can make my response without fear that the person threatening me will cause me actual harm because of my self-affirmation. I can respect my own rightful anger, indignation, and even feelings of hurt WHILE RECOGNIZING that this other person's words cannot harm me unless I choose to internalize their message. I can be a "survivor" of oppression rather than simply its "victim."

Title: Extreme Emotions- Whatcha Gonna Do With 'em?

Comment On: Comment By: 118148809

Message:

extreme emotional states need to be looked at,with- out prejudice, for a moment. By extreme, I'm talking about murderous rage, grief, or even an intense joy. I once worked with a Reichian therapist-that's a body work therapy which assumes that supressed emotion is actually part of the body structure, and creates an armoring effect in the muscles. We were working with a hyperventilation technique (among other things) that would increase the body's metabolism. At some point, these armor bands would release the emotional charge that they had been holding.
The results were sometimes very explosive, and hard to handle.
Felt like my body was being torn apart. I could scream and pound and cry but it only got out a fraction of what was there.

So, great-I had the money to do that. Buy a place where I could unload some of that. But what I'd like to see is an acknowledgement that this kind of extreme needs some kind of expression in day-to-day affairs. Many of us might agree that feelings should be expressed, such as anger or sadness. But as soon as the feelings become more extreme, with possibilities of violence, then it's no longer all right. It's not just socially inconvenient; it's forbidden. This is rightfully so, given that stronger people can badly injure weaker people, and anyone with a weapon can kill someone else. What I want to do is go beyond that far enough to ask the question: Can a way be devised to express extreme emotion without harming other bodies? In some way, this question has to go beyond safe ways that already exist. There appears to be no safety at all in addressing physical violence, but as long as we assume that, we'll never question it. At times in the past I've talked with other men, and with women about this; both individually, and in groups. This is an uncomfortable topic, and I often end up dropping it, or else being aware that I'm pressing people on it. I don't want to be a fanatic, but this is a subject that affects us all, and I do want to be talking and writing about it again. I've learned a lot by pursuing this, and I want to find practices to go along with the theories. I've found, for example, that if I'm not afraid of what someone else might do to me. When I get afraid, it's because of what I might do to them. It's my own reactions I'm "afraid" of. When I was a musician, I got involved in barroom fights on three occasions. At times like those, I noticed that I felt fine, because no impulse of mine was out of place in that kind of action. I hadn't started these fights, but in breaking them up, I was allowed to work on a physical level, to take care of the problem. There are so many argumentative situations where words do not work well--there's some type of spontaneous body expression required, as well. It doesn't have to be extreme, but it often is. And if you can't let it happen because you fear it going out of control, then you gotta stuff it. I don't want to "stuff it" any more; neither do I want to kill anyone, although I've been angry enough to do so. There must be a middle ground. One that will operate in the heat of conflict, too, and not just in your group therapy role-playing session. If you've read this far, then you're not going to be leaving a crank call on my answering machine. If you have any interest in this, pro or con, give me a call. I'm interested in all developments in this area. You can reach me at 236-7706- I'm Facrell. Thanks.

Title: Handling Repulsive Lacerators of the Peace
Comment On: 101380589      Comment By:

Message:
Yes, there is a lots of denial going on around here - and we must be prepared to undersand feelings of hose who are so very out of touch -- ignorant and powerful though they may be. Wha do we do? LLet Reagan Beat Reagan! Just continue developing your individuality -- that should be enough -- that's what the repulsive lacerators would like you to destroy in yourself, eh? And when you've done that, share details of your practice -- it matters little with whom this is done - the energy will encircle somehow and revivify you, and others.

Title: If you're going to Los Angeles

Comment On: Comment By: 118156033

Message:

Remember, if you journey towards Los Angeles, plug into the vast and growing GREEN energies currently evolving and in need of your help. First, check out the LA Eco:Home, your host, Julia Russel 662-5207; There's also the Tree People (call 411 for info, in Sherman Oaks); CRSP -- Co-operative Resource Sharing Program -- if you need to start a business or invest money, or use a library, or make a video. Then you can go to Venice for the carnival which is continuous and ongoing. Kaballa Back (call 411 for her # on 27th street) organizes some of the healing sound circles and the Sound Network -- uses tibetan bowls and other fine energies. John Stein could direct you to alternative eco-economics. He's a Peace and Freedom Party Greener -- attempting to assist that group in its evolution as a green-force for the re-beautification of society. Call at 396-5359. Tell him or Julia the Green Monster suggested it. Look for floating sea cities off the coast one day soon. As Einstein said (roughly): "If there were an island where goodwill and wisdom were the operatives, I'd like to be a part of it." Me too. Hexodia, box 93342, LA 90093. Drop a few lines why don't ya? Love always, GM

Your message conveys misanthropic hatred and competition. What are your reasons for that. Many men have dominated fields not out of supressive desires but to excell in a field of their chosing. Women have dominateddd fields through ambition and greed just as well as anyone else. Since your motives are those of violence and vvengance, I hope you fail at your endeavvors. Proress should be made by ggood intentions not bias.

Comment On: 101319085 Comment By: 134878287

Message:

I want to try to answer the original question, "Why do men feel that women are messed up when they reject their romantic advances?"p.s. I am not responding to this to get a date, just to clarify for the record. Men, sometimes, not always use this excuse because they dont like rejection,so they project their own insecurity onto the women. NOT ALL MEN DO THIS, BUT ITS RARE TO FIND ONE THAT DOESNT.

When I think of all the times they or I use emotions its at a very emotional breakdown as a worry to be considered. So when I read your piece, well, it was rewarding.

Dear Pedant,

Thank you for your response. Messages such as yours provide much-needed assistance to CM (as an organization) in making decisions about hardware & locations of terminals.

If you'd like to go into any more detail on your feelings about terminal sites, please do so, either here or by calling me at CM (841-1114).

To any other users reading this message: your comments matter; we do listen!

Dear Anonymous,

One of the wonderful lessons we can learn from using CM is that in general we can only be hurt by others' ugly words about us if we in some way choose to "buy" their message. Why should I even consider trying to get your message erased? It has nothing to do with who I am; it has only to do with your strange conception of a CMCAT that exists nowhere except in your mind.

It has to do with the tone quality of metallic forms of Rock. I had noticed that I had grown up being somewhat addicted to listening to Led Zep, Hendrix, the James Gang, and other bombastic-sounding bands. When I learned how to get this tone on guitar in my own playing, I noticed that when I was "on" with it, it seemed that I was expressing a lot of extremes that had no other outlet at the time. Certain techniques bring out more of this, so that's what I played. Current metal bands often go past the expression of whatever I'm hearing in that compressed tone; I personally find the best expressions of it one step back from metal.

Z.Z. Top, Thin Lizzy, AC/DC, Ozzy Osbourne, and still, Led Zeppelin, seem to create the cathartic effect without going past it. A lot of my friends consider most of these groups as ones with little redeeming value, but I've always disanceed. There's something

Comment On: 134879382 Comment By:

Message:

Respectfully, Pan, it was just a daytime passing. I am not the Doctor, and I am only the greatest I can be for myself, not over all, etc.

Though I wish not for excuses and Trival Wars, I do welcome point-counterpoint discussion. I understand the many br-ingdown people and things to be, and it's sad. May there be change. DRUMMER

Message:

Don't be so quickly offended, Doctor Omega, that was Pan's quick assumption. I do thank you, also for reinforcing the obviously needed clarification much in demand in systems as this is. I will call attention to this, too, as I want an open common ground from the start. You seem to be, as I see most/some people here, rational and reasonable.
 I don't think Pan was ill-intentioned. I am not into the tripe stuff in the C.M., but open to communication. DRUMMER*****

Title: Unreal Curious and T for T

Comment On: 134879903 Comment By: 151655291

Message:

No, but I am the original drummer and co-founder for the band. I am semi-multi-faceted (no trucks intended) and one thing I do is "drum" up and try to cosmicly (?) control, or otherwise move the shows and club dates in the truest obscure tradition that flavors the unreality surrounding the original construct.

Besides occassional lights, I roadie, road manage, technically align problems, many times sort out the "direction" and material.

I really never have had to word this before, so I hope you will bear with me on this.
The direction of Unreal in the band is to touch upon the spirit, dance, and intrigue of people who are active or going thru changes and love living tremendously.

I do still "sit in" at times and will play a lot at the Christmas 10 Year Re-union.
the fourth and most contributing drummer and most intregal is Vernon Lawton, who has had extensive inter-play with the NATIVES, MADHATTERS, SUNDAY NIGHT BAND (at the Starry Plough only),
and others. I don't mind doing a little press as long as it is not obnoxious. (besides it is my best power or occupational quest)

Further dates/info can be had by contacting Ron @ 849 0606 (guitar). I'm on my way to the :

MEADOW MUFFIN 10 ANNIVERSARY SPECTACULAR (WEED, CALFORNIA 1987)

There will be a time to be had there!!!!!!

Thanks for asking and Heavy Blessings to you and a Beautiful Jourey awaits.
the DRUMMER

Well in my life I was always ten years into anything before I learned anything or "read the instructions". I will learn to use this more efficiently in the near future. As a novice junior hacker, I do use a few systems off and on; with a schedule I keep I don't get enough finesse in the right places, but I'll get better, honest.....

Comment On: Comment By:

Message:
Gary Hart got the shaft. Our society demands that women participate with men in business and politics as equal partners. Alas, our value systems have not kept pace with reality. If a man and woman get together for business, people talk, and what they say can destroy careers.

You may be next.

Title: So,, what is to be expected when the people insist on follo

Comment On: Comment By:

Message:

So,, what is to be expected when the people insist on following leaders who represent the collective mind which having no body has no moral basis. They can expect Jim Bakker, Gary Hart, and our annual favorite ron headrest. Anybody who infers from this message that the body is the basis of morality and then goes to rub strangers on crowded buses had better set their sights sites and sighs a little higher up on the central nervous system.
more nonsense later.

We'll call CM oxymoronic, I think, when it becomes clear to the observant user that C is often exclusive of M. I am disheartened by the amount of driveel that must be plodded through in order to view meaningful discourse in this medium. It's a good idea to encourage such communication, granted, but the software could use some updating... petty-petty-petty--I know. The CM must be working well for some of you, but the largess of us other users are left will your BS to wade through. I speak as a group of twenty intelligent persons who are imaginative enough to use this media meaningfully without benefit. I think we are all growing tired of this drain. Oyeah, clear me from your disks, O CM, and I am now free to communicate aside from your bounds!

Title: BBQ needs insurance
Comment On: 134897537 Comment By: 134901674

Message:

Thanks for your good words.

Now, about the second attempts at the BBQ. Here's my suggestion, now that your reliability is in question (you could have let us know it was off before you left). Guarentee the BBQ by insuring it against cancelation. Set up an escrow account or Lloyd's of London insurance policy so that if we show up and there is no BBQ, we get compensated.
OR, get an agreement among several persons on an exact time and date,
and then whoever shows is it.

Adam, I see you still insist on abusing the index and sabotaging the purpose of CM.

I therefore declare you PERSONA NON GRATA, and enemy of CM, an immoral person, a committer of fraud and an abuser of humanity.

Let the court of public opinion try you.

I pronounce you GUILTY, GUILTY, GUILTY!

Keep abusing the CALENDAR index word and we will gang up to shun you, to ignore you, to treat you with the contempt you deserve.

In the name of natural law, I have spoken.

Title: response to anonymous who wants own author name

Comment On: 134910412      Comment By:

Message:

Dear anonymous,

To insert an author name, you need to use the EXTRA button (to the left of /!) either while writing the message or later on during the same session at the CM terminal. If you author a message as anonymous, go away from the terminal, and then come back, you won't be able to insert an author name, as the computer won't have any way to know that you're the actual author.

Once you've chosen the EXTRA button, step through the various processes (editing content, title) until you arrive at author name. Then enter the name you've chosen. You'll be asked for a password, which will allow you to make other changes to the message at a later time. That's the scoop!

Comment On: 134903802      Comment By:

Message:

Dear EKV,

Thanks for the comments, both here & others on future CM locations.

Truth to tell, I am unclear on the claims of censorship on CM.

Evidently several of Adam Stern's index words over the limit of 10 were somehow removed. I don't know how this was done. I do know that the CM staff has not and will not mess with someone's message, password, or author name. The one exception I mentioned in a previous message about censorship is that we have on the RAREST OF OCCASIONS erased a message after we were contacted by someone who could show us the msg was causing actual personal harm or harassment. This has happened only 4 or 5 times in an entire year.

Title: Women are not real people

Comment On: 101319085      Comment By:

Message:

One of the big tragedies of the sexist society we are now SLOWLY moving away from is that the prescribed roles for men and women overlapped in only a very few places. Romance is one of the few ways in which men and women traditionally relate. To the extent that people are influenced by the ideas of a "man's place" or a "women's place", the expectation is that when men and women relate to each other, they do so romantically (since women don't know anything about the "real" world and men don't know anything about the home). Men coming from this mindset expect women to relate to them sexually because that is the only way they know how to relate to women. Maybe men and women of the next generation will know a little more about one another as people, and thus be able to tolerate more freedom of action from each other....

Title: Response to Adam from Carl

Comment On: 118160997 Comment By: 134914206

Message:

Dear Adam,

1) What exactly did CMCAT say that has you so upset? To my knowledge, the CM staff has only removed a few messages in the past three years. All these messages were of the form "For a good time call ...." and the person whose phone number appeared in the message called us and requested that it be removed (we verified the phone number by calling back). These messages were serving no purpose to anyone, because no one was having the promised good time.

2) We're looking into this watcher business, but as near as I can tell, only irrelevant index words were removed, not any messages.

3) What's all this about EKU's messages having been removed? When did it happen? Why hasn't EKU said anything about it? It's all news to me.

We've had a long-standing commitment to letting anyone say anything, which many users have more than taken advantage of, and that commitment continues.

Title: Getting in touch with yourself

Comment On: 118147231 Comment By: 134916465

Message:

Some interesting ideas in there. I might have something to add to what you said about fear. I grew up in a relatively repressed atmosphere (Catholic school, etc.) which taught you to think of yourself as something evil whose only salvation was in exerting intellectual control over your impulses. The consequence of this was that for the first twenty-odd years of my life, I lived with a great fear of what would happen if I loosened up my control over myself. The most interesting fact for me is that I got a lot of positive feedback for this idea -- when I started acting in ways that I thought of as impulsive, things usually went wrong. Through a lot of self examination, I gradually began to realize how much I already depended on my subconscious to keep my life together, even though I always credited my intellect. As I realized that, I began consciously relying on my intuition more and more. I've come to the point now where I trust a lot in what my subconscious will or won't do -- I no longer relate to myself as something to be controlled. As this has happened, I've also become a lot happier: less jealous, frustrated, and angry. Have other people had similar experiences?

Title: Support for woman tech

Comment On: 118156963 Comment By: 134915009

Message:

I used to work for a computer hardware manufacturer about ten years ago, when they hired their first women electronics techs, and believe me there was a lot of prejudice, jealousy, and insecurity on the part of the male techs in the company. I was honestly shocked by the reaction, which struck me as anachronistic even then, but it may not be much better now. If our "misanthropic lesbian" has to put up with even half the harrassment I saw, it's no wonder she's misanthropic. Cut the women some slack. Intentionally or not, women have traditionally been excluded from a lot of situations, and there are at least a vocal minority of people trying to keep things that way.

Title: No support to Misanthropes
Comment On: 134913242 Comment By:
Message:

Women have no excuse for misanthrophy. Practically any minority ,ethnic group, age group ,gender group, size group etc rose to recognition through overwhelming bias, predjudice, rascism, injustice against them at the time. Most of them still are. This does not justify them turning the tables and subjecting others to their fates. Of all the groups, women have made the most advances within this century, above all the other minority or other distinguishable groups. They are NOT first in oppcession. Blacks, children, hispanics, assians, Indians, men, handdicapped etc. have suffered far more barriers then they have and still do. In fact womens groups have risen to the point of tyranical injustices that have remained unchecked by any group. Supporting misanthrophes is just another way to perpetuate the distrust and ethnocentrism that many tyrants(notably Hitlec) used to pursue their ambitious endds.

Marvin:

At first I over-reacted as self rightiously as I accused you of being. But don't use me as an example, for I'm not one to waste or screw around with things as a general rule.

However, you are absolutely correct in what you had to say in general, and I side with those issues most certainly. Keep on, and in future exchanges, may we have more to walk with.
