WITH INFORMATION AT YOUR FINGERTIPS.

It's easy to keep up-to-the-second on all of the topics that are so important to accomplishing your goals. Want to know the books and reports available in your subject area? Need abstracts of articles or copies of the latest newsletters? The Corporate Information Center (CIC) is the place to go. Peruse these pages. They'll tell you everything you need to know about staying in the know. The collections are as diverse as the positions at Tandem!

AND THERE ARE SEVERAL LOCATIONS TOO.

Besides CIC's central location, which holds our main collection, we have two other branches. The Communications Library features materials in the fields of data communications and telecommunications. Support materials for the Transaction Systems Division and Transaction Networks Division can be found in the Technical Information Center. And a separate library, the Business Information Center, specializes in marketing information. The collections from all locations are combined in one catalog conveniently located under LIBRARY on your terminal. Select an item and your terminal will tell you where the item is located. Details follow!

We have a large reference collection on business and technical subjects, including:

Regularly updated information on industries, companies, and products.

Materials from research firms such as Auerbach, Data-pro, InfoCorp, IPC, Standard & Poor, and Gartner Group.

The IBM Service for Consultants, AI Research Highlights, and Japanese Technical Information Services (JTIS).

Approximately 350 journals in such areas as business, electronics, and computer programming are in our collection. We have most of the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers (IEEE) and Association of Computer Machinery (ACM) publications. Our collection of journals on Japan and Korea is growing. By request, you can receive a complete listing of journal holdings, updated quarterly.

Tandem publications, such as manuals, internal reports, and technical reports, are available. A complete set of current software and hardware manuals is kept as reference material for use in the CIC.

Research reports on technical subjects, reports from universities, and marketing reports from industry sources are available at the Technical Information Center.

Newsletters have the most current information available in print on topics relevant to the computer industry. The CIC currently subscribes to approximately 130 of them, including FT Systems, Fiber Optics News, Outlook on IBM, SNA Perspective, Patty Seybold's Office Systems Report, Artificial Intelligence, World UNIX & C, and Korea High Tech Review. A complete listing of available newsletters can be sent to you on request.

The CIC has approximately 6,000 books and reports in the business, science, and technical areas, cataloged under the Library of Congress classification system.

The CIC has a large collection of standards and specifications available. Our collection includes ANSI, IEEE, and FPS.

We subscribe to many newspapers and trade papers, including some that may surprise you, like Gaming and Wagering Business. On the more traditional side, you'll find the Wall Street Journal, Computerworld, the Asian Wall Street Journal, Electronic News, Barron's, PC Week, and many more. Our computer search service has access to newspaper databases, including the New York Times, Washington Post, Chicago Tribune, and a selection of smaller papers.

The CIC works with the Human Resources Department to make available many self-paced, self-study audiocassettes on a variety of subjects, such as self-motivation, time management, and stress management. Some of the titles include High Self-Esteem, One-Minute Manager, and The Success Team.

THE COLLECTION IS YOUR CONNECTION.

Our collection is extensive, timely, easy to get to, and best of all, it's growing. We have everything from Dataquest research materials to the Kelly Blue Book, from audiotapes to videotapes. Or what about an ANSI standard or a self-study cassette to brighten up your day? The kind of connections you make with our collections will get you where you want to go!

Our newest information delivery system is the CD-ROM. Available on compact disc are the McGraw-Hill Concise Encyclopedia of Science and Technology, the American Heritage Dictionary, the Chicago Manual of Style, the World Almanac, the Zip Code Directory, a spelling verifier and corrector, and much more.

DIALOG connects us to approximately 250 databases in virtually all subject fields.

VU/TEXT carries the full text of many newspapers across the country.

NEXIS/LEXIS carries the New York Times, the Washington Post and many other newspapers, news wires, government publications, and journals.

DOW JONES links us to present and historic stock information, the full text of the Wall Street Journal, and to continuously updated major business, financial, and foreign news of the day. It also provides texts of more than 13,000 research reports from top brokers, investment bankers, and other analysts.

NEWSNET has access to the full text of many popular newsletters such as Seybold Report on Professional Computing, Software in Print, Telecommuting Report, and Video Disc and Optical Disc Update.

Two other resources are available to you. Our Apple Macintosh is available for use in the CIC. Use our software or you can bring your own. And our collection of videotapes at the Communications Library may be viewed.

HERE'S A TERMINAL IN YOUR LIBRARY.

The world of information is a big one and we're here to explore it with you. One of our resources is our on-line access to research services, which enables us to scout in remote databases, bring back yesterday's New York Times, or map out uncharted territory in the form of bibliographies or abstracts of articles in your subject area. From this initial information, you can request full texts. Call us, give us a day or so to do our terminal traveling and we'll send you the results, either through your terminal or the mail. This service is available to all employees regardless of location.

Once the catalog is available on your system, type LIBRARY at the prompt. An initial menu will appear on your screen that looks like the one below.

Let's assume you're looking for the Information Center's holdings for a particular author. Press F2 at the Initial Menu, and type the author's last name. If you are unsure of the spelling of the author's name, you may truncate, as in TELE. Now press F1; your terminal screen will show the Center's complete list of holdings on that author.

Don't overlook the NOTES screen. Here you can browse through the table of contents or skim an abstract.

To access a particular title by that author, simply position the cursor at the appropriate line and press F2, as indicated. Information comparable to the traditional card you would find in a card catalog appears on the screen.

HUMB THROUGH THE ON-LINE CATALOG.

A listing of the Tandem books and records is available through our on-line catalog. A staff member can assist you in finding what you need. But did you know you can do it yourself, wherever you are in the Tandem world? At your terminal, by typing LIBRARY after the prompt, you can electronically browse to your heart's, or thumb's, content. These pages tell you how.

If the program isn't on your system, just notify your librarian, who will in turn let your systems manager know.

And one more thing to remember. Once you've seen it on your terminal, you can get it by mail, whether you're at Corporate Headquarters or in a field office.

“Can you order
a book that I really need for a project I'm on?”

At your request, ongoing searches tailored to your specific needs can be arranged. For example, a "publications profile" can be set up according to your field of interest. The staff will scan incoming journals, newspapers and newsletters and forward relevant articles to you.

An automatic, monthly search can also be generated in many of the on-line databases which will track key words (subjects) of your choosing. This Selective Dissemination of Information (SDI) service can save you time and you will be assured of receiving the most current information.

The CIC maintains reciprocal relationships with many other libraries specializing in a wide variety of subject areas. Thus, materials not directly available at the Center can often be obtained through interlibrary loans.

Can't find what you want? Don't know exactly what you want? In that case, one of the information specialists on our staff may be able to help you further define your information request and how it can best be met. No matter where you are, you can reach us by phone (type TELE LIBRARY). And remember, we always welcome recommendations for new materials in areas important to employees. Your suggestions are the best way to build a resource center reflecting company needs.

---

Staff members are available to conduct tours of the facilities and to make presentations at your location. Call the Corporate Information Center and arrange one!

What happens if an item is overdue?

If an item is overdue for several weeks, we'll send you a reminder by MAIL. If we don't get it back, ultimately your department will be charged for replacement.

How long can materials be checked out?

"It would be great to know what publications are coming out of the computer departments at MIT, Stanford and Berkeley. Do you have that kind of information? And speaking of publications, how about any of the research reports that come out of SRI? Do you have a list of their current research reports?"

We regularly receive lists of publications from a number of universities. The papers we receive are listed on our on-line bimonthly newsletter. A message to us stating which are of interest to you is all you need to do in order to receive a research report.

"It's really important for my group to have the most current ANSI standard on Device Specific Command Set. Can you get it for me before next week?"

Yes, we can get ANSI standards as well as other standards from organizations such as ISO and CCITT in a very short time.

"I think this company I'm visiting next week is really owned by somebody else. Is there a way for you to find that out for me? And can you find out anything about who the company officers are? Maybe also where they might have branch offices?"

Business information databases are readily available and will provide you with complete company histories, including business, financial and corporate affiliate information.

The videotape collection can be viewed in the video room located next to the Communications Library. Seating accommodations up to eight people.

HECK IT OUT!

Now that you've found the book or report you wanted in one of our locations, or on the LIBRARY in your terminal, you can check it out. Unless there is a waiting list, your item can be renewed by electronic MAIL or telephone request.

The Corporate Information Center was established in 1978 with a donation of six books. The collection has grown in subject matter as well as size, and the collection now better reflects your needs. All employees have access to an information center because it is a valuable resource. Let us hear from you.
