Mr. F. E. Johnston

POUGHKEEPSIE

August 5, 1958

You recall that at the last meeting of the Mathematical Planning Group June 30 - July 1, 1958, that some of the Los Alamos members, particularly Ed Voorhees expressed interest in reading the original timing simulator memos which I reported upon at the meeting.

We certainly have no intention of keeping secrets from the people there, still the nature of the contents of these memos is such that they must be treated as Company Confidential. For this reason we are sending the copies to you instead of directly to Los Alamos. You may let the members of the Mathematical Planning Group study the memos as much as they like but with the understanding that they are confidential and should eventually be returned to you.

Also point out that the memos were written at different times during a period in which the computer organization and the simulation code were both being changed, so that they must by their nature be somewhat obsolete.

When other reports become available, I will make sure you are included in the distribution.

Best wishes,
